Orland Fire Department Fights Two Local Fires

Early last Friday morning the barking of a pet family dog awakened the Cione family in their bedroom over their tavern at 143rd and Harlem east of Orland Park, and they discovered the place was on fire.

They only had time to flee for their lives and did not save any of the household goods. It is reported that in the excitement of leaving the burning building, the dog was over looked and perished.

The Orland Park Fire Department was called but the flames had gained such a headway that the building was beyond saving and burned to the ground only the brick walls remain standing. Just what the loss is has not been stated.

The explosion of an oil heater is said to have caused the fire.

About 8 o'clock Tuesday morning the Orland Park Fire Dept. received a call that the John Graff dwelling a half mile south of 159th street near the Oswald Grove was on fire.

Upon arriving at the scene of the fire, the firemen found the building beyond saving. A strong wind fanned the flames until the dwelling was a roaring furnace. Neighbors had managed to save most of the furniture and clothing from the six room house.

Mrs. Graff was home alone at the time the fire broke out due to an overheated stove pipe. Not having a phone, Mrs. Graff had to go half a mile to the Oswald place to call the Orland Park Fire Dept., and in the meantime the fire had burned into an attic and soon was out of control.

The dwelling was built only a few years ago. The loss is estimated at about $5,000 partly covered by insurance.

The household effects saved from the burning home were later stored in the family garage.

Boys Drive Car on Skating Pond And Are Arrested By Frankfort Mayor

George Sangmeister, President of the Frankfort Village Board made two arrests last Tuesday evening when a pair of youths who are employed on farms in the vicinity drove their automobile on the community skating pond, endangering skaters and rendering the pond unfit for skating for some time. A tractor was required to tow out the car.

Protests from indignant skaters resulted in fisticuffs and the two boys were brought before Police Magistrate J. C. Knight and each paid a fine of $8.50. This pond is maintained by the Frankfort volunteer fire department and is greatly appreciated by the young people of the community.

MOKENA CIVIC GROUP HAS SKATING RINK FLOODED FOR SKATERS

The Mokena Civic Association has had the ice skating rink on the Mokena school grounds flooded the past week and the skating fans of the community are enjoying the ice sport.

TINLEY IMPLEMENT MAN TO HOLD FARM SHOW

Elmer Siemsen the Tinley Park dealer of the McCormick-Deering Farm Implement Co., will sponsor a big free farm show at the Tinley Park school gym on the evening of January 24th commencing at 7:30 p. m. A very interesting and instructive program is being arranged for. More particulars next week. Keep this date in mind.

Free Farm Show And Dance At Frankfort January 16

The big event coming to Frankfort next Friday night, January 16, is the big free McCormick-Deering Farm Show which is being sponsored by A. J. Heisner the Frankfort McCormick-Deering dealer at the Frankfort gym. An excellent program will be provided by artists from the Chicago Artists Bureau. There will be acrobatic acts, comedy good music and will be topped off with a free dance at the close of the show.

The public is most heartily invited to attend this affair. Come, you will enjoy every minute.

ORLAND TIRE RATIONING BOARD SET UP

In the Cook County setup of tire rationing boards, the board for Orland township territory has been named as follows: Chairman Orville Schmaedeke; members, Ray W. Doctor and George E. Gee.

WCLS OFFERS NEW SERIES OF DAILY PROGRAMS

Every farm and community home in the WCLS listening area is particularly invited to listen to their own local radio station from seven until ten in the morning when a series of programs designed especially for them will be broadcast daily. Jim Mitchell, WCLS program director, and Ted Blair, Farm Editor, spent much time and research to design a series of service and entertainment programs streamlined to meet present day needs of farm and small community audiences. Included during this three hour period, 7 to 10 a. m., will be local news, devotional services, hymns, music of the hills and prairies, as well as standard classical and popular music, state wide news and latest markets. The new three hour broadcast period is designed to take the place of a single morning farm program—with a much more comprehensive coverage of topics and entertainment of interest to rural audiences.

At five minutes after one, each afternoon, the community reporter brings news of fourteen nearby communities in three counties. Every evening at five after seven the Farm Hour, conducted by Ted Blair, tops the days farm service programs with a half hour of specially edited material and prominent farm organization personalities as well as the up to the minute news from the farm front.

St. Mary's Parish To Hold Card Party for Benefit of Red Cross War Fund

The parish of St. Mary's Catholic church of Mokena will sponsor a card party at the Parish Hall on Wednesday evening, January 21st. The proceeds are for the benefit of the war relief fund of the Mokena Red Cross Chapter.

The boy scouts will sell tickets and everyone is invited to attend.

Will Celebrate Birthdays Saturday Evening

A party honoring the birthday of Norval Robinson and a group of his friends having birthdays in the same week, will be held this Saturday evening in the Robinson Tavern on Wolf Road south of Mokena.

ORLAND TOWNSHIP VOTERS TO REGISTER

All voters in Orland township must register on or before January 20, 1942 in order to vote in the spring county primary. All voters residing outside of the corporate limits of the Village of Orland Park must register with Elmer Newton, town clerk of Orland township and those residing in the village of Orland Park must register with Joseph Rust, Village Clerk.

New Lenox Tavern Operator Sued For Failure To Pay State Sales Tax

Aged Mokena Resident Breaks Hip In Fall

Mrs. Susan Smith, aged 92 years, fell in her home in Mokena Wednesday morning, breaking a hip. She was taken to the Silver Cross hospital in Joliet.

Red Cross War Work Outlined In Meeting At Bender Home

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. H. Bender opened their beautiful new home on Wolf Road south of Mokena to a meeting last Friday night to acquaint the community with the work of the Red Cross and to show what work the Red Cross has outlined to do in the present war emergency.

Over sixty guests assembled in the spacious parlor of the Bender home which was indeed very colorful with the Yuletide decorations and a huge Christmas tree. With the American flag to the right and the Red Cross flag to the left of the speaker's table, the meeting was opened by Mrs. Raymond McGuire of the Mokena Red Cross Chapter who introduced the speaker, Mrs. Manly Mumford of Mokena who gave a graphic account of the history of the Red Cross going back to 1859, the year of its founding. Mrs. Mumford showed that the Red Cross is always ready to aid human needs whether it be a flood, fire, disaster of any kind or war and recognizes neither friend or foe—only humanity. She also depicted the need for knitting and sewing in the present emergency.

Mrs. Olga Wilkey, executive secretary of the Will County Red Cross gave a very fine account of how the Will County chapter is meeting the quotas assigned to it in matter of finished materials and the raising of a war relief fund. Mrs. Wilkey reported that the Will County Red Cross had raised the sum of $52,000 in its combined annual Red Cross membership drive and the present war relief drive. She exhibited layettes, sweaters and other material made by the Red Cross workers. Oliver Schaeffer, chairman of the Mokena Red Cross Chapter gave a good accounting of the work done by the Mokena unit.

It was announced that adult first aid classes will be started in Mokena about January 15th. These classes will be for both men and women and efforts are being made to procure men and women instructors.

A class in nutrition will also be organized soon.

At the close of the meeting, the gracious host and hostess escorted the guests through their palatial home and then served the guests with coffee and doughnuts. All present thanked Mr. and Mrs. Bender for their kind hospitality.

Watch for more details about the coming Mokena Red Cross activities.

TO HOLD YOUTH MID-WINTER INSTITUTE AT

TINLEY PARK JAN. 16-17

The Tinley Park Methodist church is making plans for a large gathering of Youth who will meet January 16 and 17 at the Methodist church in Tinley Park.

The event is the annual Joliet District Midwinter Institute of the Methodist Youth Fellowship. For years the mid winter institute has been an annual event in the work of the Epworth League, and since the Union of the three great branches of the church, together with the reorganization of the youth work, this event becomes a part of the work of the Youth Fellowship. Rev. Merrill S. Tope, pastor of the Morris church is the Dean, an office chosen by the youth. His leadership is outstanding in assisting youth in facing their task as Christian Young people.

The Institute opens Friday Eve. at 6:30 with a banquet and Fellowship program. Rev. Williams of Kankakee will be the speaker.

Members and friends of the Methodist church are co-operating in this program by opening their homes to furnish the necessary sleeping quarters and breakfast for those who will remain here for the entire Institute period.

Registration fees for the whole institute will be $1.10 and for Friday banquet and Fellowship 85c.

Classes held on Saturday begin at 9:30 a. m. and the final service will be at 3:30 p. m. This affords all who have come ample time to be home before dark.

The slogan for the institute is: "Victorious Christian Youth".

Frankfort Farmer Loses 20 Hogs Through Dog Bite

At the regular meeting of the Frankfort village board Monday night the question of flying the flag at the village hall was discussed at length. As the flag of our country must be properly flown at all times and taken down every evening at sun down and again raised in the morning, a new duty for someone was realized. The Village Clerk Walter Pfaff volunteered to put the flag up each morning but because of his work he would not be able to take it down at night. The board is hoping that someone who reads this notice will volunteer to do this service for which a small fee will be attached.

Mr. Henry Smit, an employee of the A. J. Heisner garage has faithfully blown the fire siren at the village hall each noon with out compensation. The board members felt that Mr. Smit deserved some recognition and at Christmas time gave him a check of $5.00 for the splendid work he has done. The board also decided to put a quarantine upon stray dogs for an undesignated period of time. They are asking all citizens to not let their dogs run loose and to cooperate with them in this matter.

A short time ago a dog bit a hog in this vicinity causing the owner to loose 20 of his hogs. This prompted the village board to take this step.

Frankfort Boy Lands In Hawaiian Islands

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Brandau of Frankfort received a letter this past week from their son Edwin G. saying he had arrived in Schofield Barracks, Hawaiian Islands. He says the country is very beautiful, there are banana trees and flowers. He says he likes the country and climate very much, but misses the News-Bulletin.

Will County Tire Rationing Board Is Appointed

A meeting was held in Joliet Tuesday night of all the Mayors of the cities and villages in Will County for the purpose of perfecting a defense organization.

Under this council the automobile tire rationing is handled. Mayor Jones of Joliet is the chairman of the Will County council, who appointed George P. Peterson chairman, Mrs. Margery Pyle and Mr. Lloyd Butterfield as members of the tire rationing board.

They appointed 12 inspectors for the county, 6 in the city of Joliet and 6 outside of the city who are located in Lockport, Plainfield, Mokena, Wilmington, Beecher and Peotone.

Although the tire rationing organization has not been perfected the set up is as follows: When a citizen needs a new tire for an auto or truck he will go to the nearest inspector and if the latter approves of him having a new tire, a permit for same will be issued to him. It is said that 80 new tires a month are allotted to all of Will County.

Wednesday evening a meeting was called by the tire rationing board of all garage owners in the county. They met in the council rooms of the City of Joliet and discussed at great length the handling of this matter but nothing has been decided.

Another meeting of the same group is to be held in the very near future. Mr. Elmer Cooper of Mokena attended.

MARRIED TO SOLDIER IN FRANKFORT CHURCH

Miss Arline Haake, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ferdinand Haake, and Staff Sergeant, Geo. L. Baughman were united in marriage December 31 at three o'clock in the parsonage of St. Peter's Evangelical church at Frankfort, Ill., Rev. G. S. Gerhold officiating.

The bride wore a floor length dress of white slipper satin with a white blusher veil and a tiara of white rosebuds. Her shoulder corsage was white carnations and the only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift of the groom.

Miss Bernice Haake, sister of the bride served as maid of honor, wearing a floor length dress of deep pink brocadee satin with a pink blusher veil and a tiara of pink rosebuds. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink carnations.

Lyle Ingraham of Wilton Center friend of the groom served as best man. After the ceremony the bridal party went to Joliet for dinner.

On Friday morning the groom left for Washington D. C. where he is stationed. His bride will join him later.

To Our Subscribers

A large number of our subscribers for the past three weeks have taken advantage of our premium offer of the Kitchen Hatchet. We are very glad to mention this. And now we would like to ask all of our subscribers whose subscriptions have expired if they will come to the office, either Tinley Park or Mokena, or by mail and pay their subscriptions without the need of us sending a notice which will save on envelopes which are effected in the paper scarcity.

We have always been glad to offer a premium trying to make them such as will always be a reminder of your home town community paper and the premium this year is the hatchet made of steel with 5 different uses: Fish scaler, Steak tenderizer, removes caps from bottles or lids from glasses, cleaver for cutting small bones such as chicken fish etc., and convenience for crumbing nuts, vegetables etc. Ideal for boy scouts as well as use in the home.

We have about 100 of these left and will try to get more but the manufacturer has told us he would not guarantee delivery of same. We want you to have this premium as well as the paper and for the many who have in person and by letter said such nice things to us about the paper and how it is enjoyed by them, we thank you one and all, and it is our endeavor at all times to make and keep your home town paper such that you can always be proud of it.

Add 5c for postage when premium has to be mailed.

CHIMNEY SPARKS CAUSE ROOF FIRE AT TINLEY PARK

At about 1:00 o'clock Monday afternoon a fire, caused by chimney sparks, started on the roof of the Mrs. Kate Hopman home on Oak Park Ave., Tinley Park. The fire Department was called and quickly extinguished the blaze. A hole had to be chopped in the roof. The total damage it is estimated will be between $25.00 and $50.00.

Former Village Official Meets Tragic Death

The Mokena community was deeply shocked Monday morning when a message was received that George F. Koeller, 64 years old, a resident of Mokena for quite a number of years had been killed at the Auburn Park station of the Rock Island railroad where he had been employed as agent.

No one witnessed the accident. A porter is said to have found the lifeless body with the head badly crushed at the bottom of elevator shaft in the baggage room.

The inquest was held Tuesday morning.

Mr. Koeller was employed by the Rock Island for many years and would have retired on a pension in another year.

Mr. Koeller was much interested in the civic affairs of his community and served as a member of the Mokena village board from 1932 to 1937.

Surviving are his wife Jessie M., nee Horn; two daughters, Mrs. Florence Gee, Beverly Hills, Mrs. Almirra Schindler, Alexandria, Va., one son George F., Jr., New Lenox; two brothers, Victor C., and Edw. J., of Chicago.

Funeral services will be held this (Friday) afternoon at 2 o'clock at the Carlson Funeral Home, Benton & Youngs Ave., Joliet with Rev. John Templeton of the Mokena Methodist church officiating. Burial will be made in the Hills of Rest cemetery west of Joliet.

The community deeply sympathizes with the grief stricken family in their tragic bereavement.

A loving husband and father and a citizen of integrity and sterling character has gone from our midst in the passing of Mr. Koeller.

Science Teams With Forest Industry To Provide 'Wood to Burn' for U. S.

(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)

One of the odd results of our defense program is the development of one of America's oldest industries and most abundant natural resources as the newest Ersatz material.

Timber and its expanding new products are being substituted for substitutes and replacing the metal alloys and composition materials which had previously replaced forest products. The reason for all this is simply that timber is plentiful, is a growing crop and presents no bottleneck.

In proof of the fact that there is no cause to worry about being deprived of toothpicks, or having the morning paper cut down to postage stamp size, a recent survey directed by University of Michigan forestry experts, shows our forests to be growing at a rate which will exceed the drain from all causes by 1945.

The significance of this and the importance of the forestation work being done by the forest products industry is evident when it is considered that United States uses half the lumber, more than half the paper, and two-fifths of the wood used in all forms in the world.

U. S. Paper Use High.

Today the United States uses as much paper as all the rest of the world combined, our consumption this year reaching an all-time peak of approximately 14,000,000 tons. Stacked four feet wide by four feet high, the yearly woodpile to make newspaper for our daily and weekly papers alone would reach from coast to coast. To give an idea of how much newspaper is used in the United States, "we, the people" read more than 36,000,000 copies of the 1,900 daily newspapers and 15,000,000 copies of the 14,000 weeklies and semi-weeklies. Yet, despite this prodigious consumption, there is enough standing timber in the United States of the principal species now commonly used in pulp and paper manufacture to keep the industry going at its present production rate for approximately 200 years, not even considering the steady replenishing annual growth.

It takes nearly 2½ million tons of paper to wrap our packages each twelvemonth. And think of all the letters that must be written annually to use up approximately 600,000 tons of stationery!

Yet despite the enormous quantities used, there is enough wood of the kind suitable for paper-making standing in our forests today to last for more than 200 years if every tree stopped growing tomorrow! And this huge reserve, which does not even include wood for building and all the other purposes, is being replenished by nature, supported by the forest products industries' modern forestry program, approximately as fast as it is being drawn upon. So there's no excuse for putting off writing that letter home!

Wide Variety of Products.

There are in use at the present time more than 15,000 different kinds of paper and paper products. They play an indispensable part in everyday routine—from the time the morning paper is delivered, through breakfast on foods which were packed in cartons and bags, at the office where ledgers, letters, files, checks and memos record business transactions, where the telephone directory lists your numbers, where the ticker tape traces market fluctuations, and where other pieces of paper request you to "please remit!"

And there is one bill marked "must remit," and addressed to the lumber, paper and pulp, and plywood industries, which is being paid off in a constructive fashion which will yield future dividends. This constructive action, taken by the forest products industries, is the development of continuous forest production which eventually will put the forests of America on a constant, sustained-yield basis. This long-range view, which insists that "timber is a crop," operates in three ways: by selective logging—cutting only mature, commercially desirable trees; by leaving clumps of seed trees to produce a new crop by natural methods; and where neither selective logging or the leaving of seed trees is practicable, by the planting of seedlings and young trees.

From log to living room—every step in the forest products industry is being improved by modern methods. Above picture shows a workman handling a log in the early stages of lumber production in the saw mill. At right—prefabricated housing. In the process units of a house are built with factory methods at a central point and hauled to the home site and assembled as shown.

And with the development of the modern tree farm, the lumber industry is taking definite steps to provide for further replenishment of our forests at a rate which even the most extensive cutting will not equal.

The most ambitious of these projects is the Clemons tree farm in Grays Harbor county, Wash. This farm, which promises to be a model for the industry, comprises over 200 square miles, or 129,023 acres, in a region famous for forests of Douglas fir, West Coast hemlock, Western red cedar, and Sitka spruce. The rugged and rolling terrain is not suited to general agriculture, but is land primarily suited—by reasons of soil and climate—to forest growing. It is estimated that within 50 years timber of commercial size will be available, thus systematically working toward making timber a continuous crop.

Reproduction comes mainly from natural restocking—from seed trees which are left—but where fire has killed new growth and seed trees, hand planting is resorted to.

The extent to which the West coast has gone into the business of replenishing our forests can be gauged by the fact that over 62,000 seedlings have been planted by hand on the forest lands of Washington and Oregon. While 6,000,000 mature and over-ripe trees will be harvested this year in the Douglas fir region, these trees, which would decay if left standing, will be replaced by between two and three million hand-planted seedlings to supplement the 10 to 12 seedlings which nature plants for every tree cut.

Legislative Aid.

Unique in legislative history—an example of an industry sponsoring self-regulation—is the action in obtaining passage of an Oregon law which makes it compulsory for loggers to leave reserve trees to maintain continuous forest growth and to provide adequate restocking.

No provisions for the future can be adequate, however, unless protection is provided for this present forest growth. Forest fires throughout the United States annually take a toll of some $40,000,000, and an even greater waste—$110,000,000—results from decay and disease.

Millions of dollars are being spent annually by the forest products industries to check the ravages of fire. And approximately 334,000,000 acres of privately owned timber are now under fire protection, according to United States forest service surveys. There are upwards of 100,000 forest fires each year, about one-fourth of them set by careless smokers and another fourth due to incendiary causes.

Modern scientific methods of fire fighting have been enlisted in recent years with increasing effectiveness. Lookout towers, high-pressure pumping units, trained crews armed with portable chemical extinguishers, and parachute squads are all contributing their part. In our present crisis, the gravity of this perennial menace is increased because of the possibility of sabotage activities in our forests, or incendiary air raids—a threat already anticipated by our military leaders, who have organized emergency forces which would go into action if such happened.

Insect Pest Loss.

Less spectacular, but even more destructive, is the ravaging work of the forest insect pests. Entomologists have found the most effective means of control of some forest insects is through introduced parasites. In the case of an insect which kills evergreens of the Northeast, parasites are being bred by the billions and "dusted" from airplanes over the forests. Another method of reducing loss from disease and decay is by concentrated cutting of over-ripe, mature stands of timber such as are highly attractive to the insects. Not only is deterioration so rapid that the loss exceeds the accumulated annual growth, but the likelihood of insect attack makes another hazard. In other words, accepted forestry principles now call for harvesting timber crop before the decay of old age sets in, and before attacks by insects.

The importance of such conservation efforts is obvious, in view of the defense production goal set up for the forest products industries for 1942. National requirements for next year include 32 billion board feet of lumber, 16,000,000 cords of pulp wood, 75,000,000 cords of fuel wood, 2,000,000,000 cubic feet of miscellaneous products, and 1,765,000 barrels of turpentine and resin for naval stores, according to Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard. Three-fourths of the $8,000,000,000 expected to go into construction business next year will be for defense purposes.

Substitute Role.

One interesting sidelight on this picture is the extending role played by wood in "substituting for substitutes." Metal alloys and composition materials, which have replaced wood to a certain extent in recent years, are now under priority rulings. Wood is being "rediscovered" and engineers and architects are taking full advantage of a natural resource so abundant that there is no danger of bottlenecks. To again quote Secretary Wickard:

"Steel plays the spectacular part in guns and tanks and warships, but wood does much of the everyday work. Cantonnments, defense housing, and factories are going up. Wood is needed for pontoon bridges, gunstocks, ships, and docks. Special types of wood are needed for airplanes. Wood goes into the making of high explosives. As charcoal, it is used in gas masks. This list could be multiplied many fold."

The forest, unlike mineral resources, is potentially inexhaustible, and research in forest products is a definite part of forestry.

Amazing scientific advances in new uses of wood are being made daily, many of them originating at the Forest Products laboratory at Madison, Wis. Here are being tested new principles of prefabricated house construction, forecasting a major new industry. Revolutionary developments in timbered construction have been achieved through use of new resin glues and ring connectors, making it possible to substitute laminated wooden arches for steel beams. Plywood has been improved and perfected and experiments are still continuing.

Drastic Action Would Follow Failure of Labor To End Defense Strikes . . . Russian Success Helps British Cause in North Africa.

(Bell Syndicate—WNU Service.)

WASHINGTON. — The necessity for having no strikes in defense production, particularly so far as airplanes, explosives, etc. are concerned, is of tremendous importance now that Washington sincerely hopes this hurdle may be surmounted through patriotic co-operation on the part of labor union leaders.

Several moves have been made by labor which seem to point in this direction, and there is a disposition in congress, as a result, to pause before rushing on to such drastic action as that envisioned in the bill introduced by Rep. Howard Smith of Virginia and rushed through the house by a big majority despite the well-known views of the administration to the contrary.

At the time the Smith bill was sent to the senate, which was some days prior to the Jap attack on Pearl Harbor, there was no probability of its enactment. As told in these dispatches at the time, the expectancy was that the bill would be amended drastically in the senate, and, unless the amendments were sweeping indeed the bill would be vetoed by the White House.

However, it was pointed out in those dispatches that the willingness of such a large majority in the house to vote such action, rather than any legislation which might soon result, was significant. This evidence of popular opinion—for the house more truly and accurately represents public opinion than any other branch of the government—spelled the certainty that eventually, unless labor mended its ways, such action would result.

Nation Now United

This picture is far more true today than it was then, for since that prediction was made the country has not only gone to war, but has been solidified and unified to an extent which one month ago was beyond the wildest hopes of the interventionists. Casualty lists have a way of smothering tolerance of the other fellow's views, but one month ago there was no thought of such serious casualty lists at any time this year. Nor could there be any calculations based on the effect on this country of the "dastardly" attack by the Japanese.

Events in that attack, and off Malaya, including the sinking of the two Japanese warships as well as our own and the British, have driven home to this now united country the truth about air power, and the vulnerability of the strongest battle fleet without air supremacy.

With that lesson pounded home and clinched, there is going to be very little patience with any strikes from now on which curtail our airplane production, or for that matter any other national defense production. Labor is going to find the public insisting that work not be stopped because of any dispute over wages or hours, and particularly over whether this or that union has jurisdiction in a given factory.

Help African Drive Russian Successes

There are signs of relief here that the campaign in North Africa seems to be going as well as most of the experts had hoped. The underlying reason is that if it were not going so well there would be a storm of criticism because American production of planes and tanks had gotten under way so slowly.

It is admitted that only the unexpected success of the Russians in the last few weeks has saved the British in North Africa.

Had the Germans been able to dig in for the cold weather after their failure to crush the Russian armies and take Moscow and Sevastopol, they could have diverted such a tremendous flying force to North Africa that the British would have been stopped and even Egypt threatened.

Underlying all this is the failure of the United States to get big production of planes, tanks, etc. under way earlier. Had that been done the British would have had such ample material in North Africa that the mopping up of the German forces from Egypt to French held territory in North Africa would have been under way several weeks ago.

Obviously the British have had superiority, but not enough superiority to make the job a quick one. Everyone expected the Nazis to put up a better fight than did the Italians in the same territory last year, and they have. In fact they have done even better than the British anticipated. They would have been beaten more quickly if the British had been able to wait until more planes and more tanks were at their disposal.

But they could not wait. They had to follow a time table set not by the state of their supplies and armaments, but by the weather. The Far eastern situation may have had something to do with it, too.

YANKEE DOODLE

I
He fumbles and he misses—
He often fans the air;
He makes his share of boners
And often splits a hair;
He wastes a lot of motions
And has a wagging tongue . . .
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When once his chin is stung!

II
He does much shadow-boxing
And dances in the dark;
His oratory often
Goes far wide of the mark;
He dearly loves to muddle
And seems a little queer . . .
But not a second after
His duty is made clear.

III
He can be fooled and kidded.
And often seems a boob;
Amid the foreign slickers
He sometimes plays the rube;
He often seems the duffer,
And likes to play the clown . . .
But it's another story
When once the chips are down!

IV
He often plays the sucker
In ways a little dumb;
In fact he's pretty childish
(Until the punches come);
He trusts a lot to fancy
And harks to fairy tales . . .
Until he gets his wind up
And then he NEVER FAILS!

V
He often is too gabby
And trusts a lot to pacts;
He sometimes wears dark glasses
So he won't know the facts;
He's futile and loquacious
Until he's good and sore . . .
But, boy, he packs a wallop
When he gets into war!

VI
He glorifies debating
And dearly loves the stump;
He likes to hear the gossip
Around the village pump;
He certainly can fiddle
Upon the old dishpan . . .
But when it comes to fighting—
It's "Gangway for a MAN!"

VII
He dearly loves his pleasures
And all his comforts,
Too;
He much prefers life festive
Than when it's very blue;
The peaceful road's the best one—
He nourishes that hunch;
But once that road ain't open,
You'd better duck that punch!

THE V DRIVE

V is for Victory,
Vigor and Vim;
Hitler's aware it is
Volleyed at him.

V is for Valor,
V's for the Vote
Well worth preserving
And keeping afloat.

V is for Voltage
Behind every clout;
V is for Vermin
We've got to drive out.

V is for Vortex
And all of us know
Into it war lords
Will presently go.

V is for "Vittles"
By sea and by air;
V's for Velocity
Speeding 'em there.

V is for Vertical—
That's where we'll be Long after Adolf is Flat as cold tea.

V means Vitality—
V stands for Vow—
V is for Victory
Coming . . . and how!

V is for Vitamins
Needed in war;
We have a lot and can
Find a lot more.

V stands for Verdun
And Vimy Ridge, too;
That it's for Vichy
Is awful but true.

These physicians, too, approve every word of advertising you read, the objective of which is only to recommend Doan's Pills as a good diuretic treatment for disorder of the kidney function and for relief of the pain and worry it causes.

If more people were aware of how the kidneys must constantly remove waste that cannot stay in the blood without injury to health, there would be better understanding of why the whole body suffers when kidneys lag, and diuretic medication would be more often employed.

Burning, scanty or too frequent urination sometimes warn of disturbed kidney function. You may suffer nagging backache, persistent headache, attacks of dizziness, getting up at night, swelling, pain under the eyes—feel weak, nervous, all played out.

Use Doan's Pills. It is better to rely on a medicine that has won world-wide acclaim than on something less favorably known. Ask your neighbor!

Speed Alaskan Defenses in Arctic Hardships

FAIRBANKS, ALASKA.—Despite 50-below-zero weather, inadequate transportation facilities and formidable natural obstacles, the corps of engineers is speedily building America's defense outposts in the far reaches of Alaska. Roads, landing fields, dock facilities and modern army posts are appearing in this uncharted Arctic wilderness.

Temperatures range from moderate in southeastern Alaska to extreme cold even in the central section, where winter temperatures as low as 50 degrees below zero are not uncommon. High winds often make unloading of materials from ships extremely dangerous. In the coastal regions of western and southwestern Alaska sudden high winds known as "willawaws" present a serious hazard to flying, shipping and other operations. These disturbances, which are more frequent from October to March, are usually of short duration but violent.

DEEP WATER ISLAND

by ALAN LEMAY

W-N-U-RELEASE

INSTALLMENT SIX

THE STORY SO FAR: Karen Waterson, convinced by her lawyer, John Colt, that she has a claim to the island estate of her grandfather, Garrett Waterson, has come to Honolulu to attempt to gain control of the property. Then through a strange circumstance and somewhat against her will she finds herself on the very island, Alakoa, with Richard Wayne or Tonga Dick, as he is known. He is a member of the Wayne family which has been in control of the island since the disappearance of her grandfather. They have found that Dick's uncle, James Wayne, who has been managing the property, is very sick. Dick tries to get Karen to work out a compromise settlement to her claims but she refuses. Late during the night Liliu, a native house girl, comes to Dick's room and tells him she has strange foreboding of evil. As they talk a rap is heard at the door.

Now continue with the story.

At the door when Dick opened it was the tiny figure of a kimonoeed Japanese girl. Her hair, usually as neat as polished ebony, was down all about her face, and through it her eyes stared so widely that they showed the whites.

"Mister Dick—you come!"

"What is it? What is it now?"

"I tap on Mister Wayne door—I take Mister Wayne him milk. Mister Wayne, he not answer."

"Well, did you go in?"

"No, no, no!"

"Where is he? In his office?"

"Yes—office. Plenty light but no speak. Something moves in there—I hear something move! But nothing in there will speak."

Dick Wayne drew a deep breath, and the air of the hall was so clammy upon his lungs it was as if he had breathed in the outer rain.

"All right."

Once more he went striding through the house, the broad old floorboards speaking under his tread, and the tabs of the Japanese girl pattering behind him.

There was a line of light under the door of James Wayne's office; but as he reached for the latch the Japanese girl flattened herself against the wall, fearful lest she accidentally see into the room, and Tonga Dick Wayne himself hesitated. He knew what was within.

James Wayne still sat in the chair behind his vast desk, in the same place he had sat during so much of twenty hard driving years. But now his head was forward upon the desk, and by the slack emptiness of his uncle's hands Dick knew that this was the end.

All over the floor were scattered the ginger blossoms of a broken lei. When Dick Wayne had made certain that his uncle was dead, he picked up the scattered ginger blossoms, and, opening a casement, threw them out into the night.

He went to the door. The Japanese girl looked smaller than ever, standing there with her back pressed tight against the koa-wood wall, as if trying to hide herself from things unseen. "Send the Missey here," he said.

"Missey Liliu?"

"No, no! The haole Missey."

"Yes, Mister Dick."

"As soon as you have sent the haole Missey to me, bring me Charles Wong."

As Dick turned back into the room he spotted one more of those inescapable ginger flowers under the corner of the desk. He picked it up and put it in his pocket. Then he went and stood at the window, looking out into blackness, unmindful of the cold spit of the rain. It seemed to him a long time before Karen came.

"Is—is something wrong?" Her words were faltering. "Has anything happened?"

Dick Wayne stared, astonished. Deep in his pocket his fingers were still rolling between them the petals of that last ginger flower; but Karen's eyes were uncommunicative and he saw that she did not so much as glance at the floor to make sure that the flowers were gone. Suddenly a terrible pity for this girl got the better of him and he shut his jaws.

"Dick," Karen cried out, "what is it?"

He was unable then, pitying her as he did, to tell her that he knew she already had the answer to that.

"James Wayne is dead," he answered.

"This—is this a terrible thing?"

"Perhaps not."

"What do you mean?"

Dick's voice was hard and bitter. "If you are going to take this island, perhaps it is better that you take it from me and from my brothers—not from the man who made it what it is."

Karen Waterson stood staring at him blankly. Until now it had seemed to Dick Wayne that nothing he had ever said to her had reached her completely in its full meaning; but now he knew that he had hurt her as definitely as if he had struck her across the face. The silence that followed had a strange hopeless quality about it, empty, yet singularly acute. Dick was glad that Charles Wong now appeared, moving quickly into the room.

Charles Wong went straight to the desk, but his eyes were questioning on Dick's face.

"Yes," Dick answered the unspoken question.

A wave of swift emotion crossed the Chinese secretary's face; he raised one hand and his fingers ran through his heavy hair.

Charles Wong went straight to the desk . . . "Yes," Dick answered the unspoken question.

"Get the doctor on the phone; get him up here at once. That is necessary for the proper reports. When that's done, get my brothers in Honolulu on the wireless phone; tell them what has happened; and that I will be in Honolulu tomorrow night, regardless of whether they will be here by then or not. Then get me John Colt; I think you already know where in Honolulu he is."

"And—what shall I tell him?"

"I'll talk to him myself."

The Holokai did not weigh her hook until after dusk of the next day; but as she beat her way slowly out through the reefs, half an hour after sunset, Dick Wayne was glad that the day was over.

Tonga Dick had respected and admired his uncle, had understood what his uncle meant to Alakoa. Everything productive that Alakoa possessed had existed first in this one man's mind. They had all depended upon him and been guided by him; all of them except Dick himself had been controlled by him.

A careful conference had been necessary with James Wayne's physician. Being already familiar with the case, he had no trouble describing, in technical terms, the failure of James Wayne's heart.

"Could this have been caused by shock?" Dick demanded.

"A shock," Shimazu said with an oddly humorless locution, "would not have been necessary; but it would have helped."

Dick Wayne experienced no relief at this declaration. He was certain that Karen Waterson had been with James Wayne when he died, and that she had sought to conceal this. And he knew that almost anyone else, knowing these facts, would leap at once to a dark and savage suspicion. He found, however, that for himself he did not need Dr. Shimazu's report; he was already convinced, beyond any shadow of present or future doubt, that Karen Waterson had not killed James Wayne.

When they had communicated with Dick's brothers and with John Colt, Tonga Dick Wayne threw the radio cut-off switch.

What remained was a full day with Charles Wong, repeatedly interrupted by the visits of cane field bosses, mill superintendents, cattle foremen. It was turning dark before Dick and Karen Waterson at last drove steeply down the mountain toward the anchorage of the Holokai.

Later, after the Holokai had put out from shore, Dick and Karen found themselves sitting face to face across a completely set table under the cabin's skylight. The main cabin of the Holokai was trim and well lighted, but necessarily very small; here not even the hovering of the Chinese mess boy could spare them a sense of being shut in, very close together.

Karen's eyes rested unhappily upon her plate. Her fork fiddled with broiled pakai, but she was unable to eat. Her clear-cut poise had returned in the form of a reticent withdrawal; but behind the thin shell of that poise Dick Wayne was able to perceive that the girl was nervously distraught.

Tonga Dick Wayne ate, for no other reason than that he had not eaten in more than eighteen hours, and waited for Karen to speak. Now, surely, he thought, she would have something to say about her presence at the death of James Wayne.

Then presently he became aware, with a slow amazement, that Karen was not going to speak. She must have known who had picked up the broken ginger blossoms that would have given her away. But did she? Dick suddenly recognized that Karen perhaps did not know.

He let his eyes rest with some deliberation upon her face, and saw that she was uncommonly pale; it gave her an exceptionally fragile look. "It seems to me," he began, "that you might tell me—"

He let the question he had begun lose itself in the black race of the sea past the lee porthole.

"We're making fast time," he said. "We'll be in Honolulu before very long."

Karen murmured, "I'm glad." A little shiver ran across her shoulders, so that her two words made

Honolulu seem a long-sought haven, for her.

"There's something I want to tell you, Karen."

She waited, relaxed and impassive except for that sense of strain behind her pale composure.

"I'm sorry I shanghaied you. I didn't realize what I was letting you in for."

"I'm not exactly used to being pushed about," Karen said.

"After all," he reminded her, "when you came aboard you believed me to be deceived even as to your name. And though your visit to Alakoa was against your will, you yourself, and your friend, John Colt, were partly responsible, I think."

Karen was silent.

"But I'm not all sorry," Dick said. "In spite of everything, I know you better now; and that has been worth while."

"I shouldn't have tried to fool you about who I was," Karen said. In spite of her concealed nervous tension, she seemed very tired, so that he could hardly hear her words. "That was a very silly mistake."

"There have been other mistakes," Dick said.

She met his eyes for a moment, and he wondered if she was thinking about a silent room, and a broken lei. He wanted to tell her that there was no reason for her to think about that; and that he believed in her completely.

Dick said morosely, "You and I ought to be able to talk to each other more easily than we do."

"Do we have to go into all that?"

"We can work these things out," Dick Wayne said. "You and I are the only ones who can."

Karen Waterson stiffened and sat back. "I can only say this—if there are to be any negotiations at all, they will have to be carried on with John Colt, not with me."

"If the case came to trial as it now stands," Dick Wayne said, "I have no doubt that you could win. After that would follow appeal after appeal, delay after delay; and even if you won in the end you'd be a white-haired old lady before your victory ever paid out. The Waynes won't give in because they can't give in."

"Neither," said Karen, looking at him directly, "do we intend to give in."

"What you mean is that John Colt won't give in."

"It's the same thing."

Dick Wayne looked at her queerly. "Is it, Karen? Are you in love with Colt? Are you going to marry him?"

CHAPTER VII

Karen looked at him steadily a moment.

"There isn't any reason why I should answer that," she said at last. "But I will. I have no intention of marrying John Colt. What I mean is that I believe I have a sound claim, and I am perfectly willing that the court should decide it. If your uncle had lived—"

She stopped, and a silence fell between them, so that they noticed again the voice of the ship, and the rush and slap of the sea. Later, Tonga Dick began talking to her again, trying to tell her what his uncle had been, as Dick saw him.

He was trying to make her see a man who had lived not for personal conquest, but for a dream. He was trying to make her understand that James Wayne had been a man who did not know how to use anything, for himself, beyond the bare necessities; one who took less from life than the salary of Charles Wong commanded. He showed her his uncle breakfasting at 3:30 in the morning, so that he could be at work by a quarter of four. He was trying to make her see twenty years of labor, in which James Wayne had given every hour of his time, every resource of his mind, to making Alakoa what it had become.

She interrupted him, after a while. "Why do you tell me all this?"

"I'm trying to make you see that there is something there that cannot be measured in dollars and cents; and that even though James Wayne is dead, the fight for the things he stood for will have to go on."

THE INFANCY AND BOYHOOD OF JESUS

LESSON TEXT—Luke 2:25-35, 39, 40.
GOLDEN TEXT—Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man.—Luke 2:52.

"Nobody knows what a boy is worth, And the world must wait to see; For every man in an honored place Is a boy that used to be."

Jesus was "only a boy" as He grew through infancy and childhood, but in that baby and that boy rested all the hopes of mankind. While He was not just like any other boy, yet His growth and development were normal, and we may learn much that will enable us to help the boy in our home, in our block, or in our church.

The mother of Jesus, in fulfillment of the law of her people, on the eighth day identified Him with the nation (Luke 2:21), and then at the end of 40 days brought Him, with her humble sacrifice, to present Him to the Lord. There a beautiful and prophetic scene took place as the Holy Spirit revealed to godly old Simeon His

I. Complete Salvation—in a Baby (vv. 25-35).

The Holy Spirit (not yet come as the indwelling presence in believers' hearts) had come upon Simeon, a man right with God and with a deep longing in his heart for the coming of the Messiah—"the consolation of Israel." He was assured of living until that day, and now as he waited in the temple the babe who fulfilled that promise was laid in his arms.

He blessed God as he broke forth in praise and prophetic utterance. Note the full conception of the work of the Redeemer—deliverance from bondage and fear of death, light to the Gentiles and glory to Israel, a stone of stumbling but also of rising again. A revealer of the hearts of men—yes, and One whose sacrificial death would pierce the heart of His mother.

One is glad that Simeon and Anna (v. 36) and "them that looked for redemption in Jerusalem" saw in Mary's infant son the Son of God incarnate, for round about was unbelief (John 1:11), hatred (Matt. 2:16), and indifference (Matt. 2:4, 5).

Is it not so today? Christmas has just been celebrated. How many saw the babe in the manger as Jesus the Saviour?

The scene changes—the little family is back in Nazareth in the humble home—and there we see

II. Perfect Development in a Boy (vv. 39, 40).

The period from infancy to accountability (12 years) is summed up in the full-orbed growth of the boy Jesus described in verse 40. The one business of every child from birth to 12, or somewhere around there, until the period of adolescence, is to grow without any sense of responsibility except obedience to authority; and obedience in the case of a child is always in order to give the child perfect freedom from everything else, without any sense of responsibility. That is the story of Jesus: He grew! (G. Campbell Morgan).

Growth is, first of all, physical. Jesus stands by the side of every boy and girl as the body grows from babyhood to maturity, for He too knew that experience. We may talk to Him as an understanding friend about the physical needs and problems of our children. Let us remember that here, as elsewhere in Scripture, the physical body is recognized as important.

Mentally, He experienced growth. The strange, apocryphal tales about the child Jesus, representing Him as a man of mature wisdom in a child's body, do not compare even remotely with the beautiful naturalness of a keen-minded boy asking questions, observing, always learning. Boys and girls, you may talk with confidence to Him about your lessons, your growing interest in this exciting world of ours, of your need for guidance in learning. Be sure that He will understand.

The crowning touch upon the growing personality of the child is the spiritual. We read of Jesus that "the grace of God was upon him." "Grace," says Dr. Morgan, "is first, that which delights and charms. Grace, secondly, is desire to impart to others the things that make them happy. Grace, finally, is the activity that does this at all costs." A gracious child is an altogether delightful being; and when that graciousness is the result of the "grace of God" upon him, it is surpassingly lovely, for it makes him Christlike, even in the days of childhood.

Great and grave has been the neglect of the spiritual life of children for whom much has been done physically and mentally. Christian parents must not make that mistake—and they need not, for the Lord Jesus here too stands ready to counsel, guide, encourage, and strengthen them in every good purpose and deed.

Tinley Park News

Mrs. Carl Goebel who has been ill for sometime, was taken to the St. Francis hospital, Blue Island Monday.

The Tinley Park postoffice has been swamped with Defense Stamps and Bonds sales. The orders have been coming in so fast that the supply of stamps and bonds has been rapidly sold.

Wednesday morning was about the coldest of the winter with the thermometer registering all the way from 14 to 20 below zero.

Mrs. Kate Hopman who has been confined to bed since she suffered a stroke some weeks ago, has been removed to the home of Fred Hopman, her son. Alvin Andres has moved into the Hopman home.

Mrs. Ferdinand Hartwig is ill. The Jiggs dinner served in the local Methodist church parlors on Thursday night was quite well attended.

The Tinley Park Vol. Fire Department met in monthly session Tuesday night.

The board of directors of the Bremen State Bank met Tuesday night. The annual stockholders meeting was held Thursday night of this week.

Pete Parenti has been confined to bed with a severe attack of rheumatism.

The annual congregational meeting of the Zion Lutheran church is to be held January 20th.

Mrs. Millard Klepper who has been clerking at the Bremen State Bank is ill and Mrs. Herman Louke is substituting for her.

Mrs. Laws, Tinley Park rural carrier who has been ill since before Christmas, is improving. Wm. Stege is the substitute carrier.

Emery Fulton who is stationed at Fort Knox, Ky., was home over the week end.

Lee Schoeneck has returned to college at Grinnell, Iowa after spending the holidays here.

The Reading circle of the Tinley Park Woman's Club met with Mrs. Grace Hannum Tuesday at 1:30.

Mrs. Hannum review "Storm" by Geo. Stewart which is a new idea in novels. The story personifies a storm of 12 days duration in the meteorologist's language but understandable by the average person. And Language in Action by S. I. Hayakama who is teaching English at the Ill. Institute of Technology in Chicago.

The Woman's Club board of Tinley Park held their January meeting in the home of Mrs. Omar Ebenhack Thursday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Felores of Crestwood announce the engagement of their daughter Helen to Aleck Uzemack, son of Mr. and Mrs. Aleck Uzemack of Tinley Park. The wedding will take place in June. The announcement was made at a large family gathering at the Uzemack home Christmas.

VFW AUXILIARY

The VFW Auxiliary held their meeting at Myrtle Wolf's, 159th St., December 29. This was a Christmas party and the table was beautifully decorated with a Santa Claus, lighted, as a centerpiece, and red candles. A gift exchange took place and the afternoon was spent in a pleasant informal way. The regular meeting of the Post will be held at the village hall, January 10 at 8 p.m. All members are asked to please attend as this meeting is very important.

The Am. Legion Aux. Juniors held their meeting with Myrtle Ellen Wolf on 159th St., last Friday. Shirley Mason presided and plans were further perfected for the Teen age dance to be given in the School gym in February.

Donald Mason enlisted in the army air corp on January 2 and has gone to Biloxi, Miss. to enter training.

The Tabernacle Society of St. Geo. Catholic church met January 5 with vice pres. Mrs. Bagby presiding. Father Malley opened the meeting with prayer. Hostesses were: Mrs. J. Penoso, Miss Anna Cottler. Cards and bunco were played and prizes awarded.

Friends and neighbors are glad to hear that Walter Stehl is on the road to recovery. He is able to receive visitors at the hospital tent at Oak Forest Infirmary. He will remain in the hospital for sometime but his badly fractured leg is healing. Friends who would like to cheer him by writing, may address him at the hospital.

He was injured December 9 in the power take off of the combine while thrashing soy beans.

Mrs. Fred H. Ehrich received a phone call Monday at midnight from her sister Mrs. Marie E. Savage at Seattle, Wash., saying that all her friends and relatives here should not worry about her in the blackouts. They are so well guarded Mrs. Savage says that the Japs had better not come around. No one on the coast seems much worried.

Mr. H. Ehrich has returned to Ironton, Minn. after spending the holidays with his mother who has been ill the past two years. The family Christmas dinner was held at the home of Mrs. Frieda E. Lambert while the farewell dinner was given Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Habenicht Jr., of Skokie, Ill.

Dr. and Mrs. Clayton Enoch were called to the Mayo hospital in Rochester, Minn. Tuesday, by the serious illness of Dr. Enoch's father. They expect to return Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Otto Jobson and family spent Sunday in Wheaton with Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Gardner and Mr. and Mrs. Chester Damerall. Mr. Damerall celebrated his birthday Sunday by having the Gardner's and Jobson's in for a turkey dinner.

TINLEY PARK Garden Club

The regular meeting of the Tinley Park Garden Club was held at the home of Mrs. John Swisher Thursday, December 18. The members were served with the Wassail drink before the luncheon while the song was sung.

The pretty favors for each member were made by Mrs. Swisher. The Christmas decorations, the lovely snow scene on the mantel, the circle of angels which decorated the table, the Nativity scene in the dining room delighted all. The meeting was opened at 2 p. m. with the pres. Mrs. Nielsen reading a lovely Christmas poem. Mrs. John Funk thanked all who donated for the Christmas boxes that were sent to the institutions and hospitals for the children. For the program Mrs. Swisher had carol singing and scripture reading.

Each member was presented with a lovely calendar made by the hostess. A gift exchange followed and everyone departed with cheerful holiday greetings. The next meeting will be January 15.

The winners in the contest were: Mr. and Mrs. Hilding Anderson, 1st prize, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Swisher, 2nd prize, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wolf, 3rd prize. There were many beautiful windows and doors in the Tinley Park area but as they were not registered they could not be judged.

The judges were: Mrs. Van Wie, Markham, Mrs. Anton Benson, Mokena, Mrs. Heitman, Blue Island.

We thank all who donated prizes —Martha Goebel, Secretary

The congregation of the Tinley Park Methodist church were pleasantly surprised Christmas day when they saw a beautiful altar set of cross and candle sticks, designed and fashioned in harmony and keeping with the chancel furniture. This gift was given to the church by Mrs. Anna Hirsch.

Members and friends of the local Methodist church who have enjoyed worship there have expressed the desire to see the beautiful sanctuary a bit more complete. By this, they have meant that a church that expresses the spirit of our country should have the flag of the country to adorn and beautify it.

A movement has been started by this loyal spirit in their desire to do their part in assuring that the United States Flag and the Christian flag be procured. They have asked Rev. Weinreich to take all donations toward this most worthy cause.

At Hilding Anderson's home New Year's Eve was celebrated in a royal manner. Having won the first prize for Christmas out door decorations, the illumination with the huge star at pinnacle of house and festoons of pine boughs and colored lights was a thing of rare beauty. In the large fire place at the end of the 40 foot living room a bright fire greeted the guests. The mantle was decorated to symbolize Peace: an angel floating to earth with heavenly light for a war torn world.

The bookcase decoration was a symbol of U.S. soldiers around the Stars and Stripes with officers and ammunition ready to protect "our Flag and Country." The host and hostess received the guests among whom were:

Captain John Homer, Chief of Fire Battalion and wife, Dr. Hurt and wife, Evelyn Campbell, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Duffie, Jas. Piemillay, Wm. Eglund, Mrs. W. B. Combs, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Roe, their young daughter Judith, Ernie Anderson, Mrs. Eleanor Bjork, Richard and Jean Anderson who are soon to enter into service, Jean as a Marine and Richard into training as an airplane mechanic, and Prof. Fred Erickson who with Mrs. Homer at the piano contributed to the evenings entertainment as did Mrs. Shirley Roe with vocal solos, accompanied by the Professor.

At midnight while the bells rang out the New Year, the guests were ushered into the dining room where a sumptuous array of foods and confections was spread. When Toasts were given the new year that Peace might soon be restored. Dancing and music were indulged in to the "wee small" hours of 1942.

Word has been received from Rockford that the Arnold Smith who burned to death when his car overturned and burned, was not from Tinley Park, but a life time resident of Pecatonica, Ill.

MOKENA

Mokena as a municipality participates in showing its colors, as evidenced by the flying of our flag every day from the flag pole at the Village Hall. This flag pole was erected during the last world war and the flag was flown from it during the duration of the war. This pole has not been used in many years but with the addition of new pulleys and ropes was quickly placed into service and the flag has been flying every day since before New Year's.

Geo. Bennett had charge of placing the flag pole in service.

The Community Christmas tree erected by the Mokena Civic Association was blown down during a heavy wind early in the morning of January 1. A number of the colored lights were broken in the fall.

Wm. Hentsch, who has been quite ill for some time, is very much improved.

The annual meeting of the stock holders of the Mokena State Bank will be held on January 14. The election of bank officers will be held on the same day. Mokena bank has declared an 8 percent dividend. The stock holders have received their dividend checks. This bank has shown a very big business during the year 1941.

The Robert Gilmore family have moved into their new home which was formerly the residence of Otto Bartels.

Mrs. A. S. H. Bender left Sunday morning by motor for a trip to California with her sister in law.

Alfred Hatch and his sister Mrs. Henry Stellwagon have returned from a trip to Miami, Florida. They report hotels are charging very high tourist rates and all the tourist camps and hotels are fearing the loss of business if a black out should go into effect in that section.

Several more scarlet fever cases have developed. Among those reported during the past week are the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Donald Ambuhl, Joyce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Werner. Both homes have been quarantined.

The Sunday School teachers and Officers of the Methodist church held a teachers meeting Wednesday evening in the home of Lydia Baudry.

The Book club will meet January 9.

Chas. Mau who enlisted in the United States Navy as apprentice seaman left for training Saturday.

Mrs. Geo. Koeller Sr. attended the funeral of Mrs. W. P. Schindel Sr. in Aurora last Tuesday. She was the mother of Mr. Walter P. Schindel, a son in law of Mr. and Mrs. Koeller. Mr. and Mrs. Walter Schindel now live in Alexandria, Va.

Mrs. Hattie Stanley, sister of Mrs. Frank Hirsch, underwent a minor operation in the St. Joseph hospital, Joliet last week.

Mrs. Demkov while playing a card game in the August Pfleger home Sunday evening, suffered a sudden paralytic stroke which affected the right arm.

TUBERCULOSIS CHRISTMAS SEAL SALE IS A SUCCESS

The preliminary reports of the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal Sale presented at the December 29th meeting of the Will County Tuberculosis Committee indicate that thus far the sale has been a definite success.

The members of the Committee decided that with the amount of money already in, plus the returns that are still coming into the Committee office the hoped for plans made before the campaign started would be realized in 1942.

One of the objectives of the Tuberculosis Association will be a more unified effort between the Tuberculosis Sanatorium, the Medical Society, the Social Agencies and the general public in stamping out the dread disease of Tuberculosis.

Final reports on the seal sale are being compiled and after all the returns are in the results will be made public.

Clubs, organizations, PTA's, schools and all other group meetings are urged to contact the Will County Tuberculosis Association at 419 Chalmers Building, Joliet and ask for a speaker to appear at one of their meetings in 1942.

FARMERS ARE URGED TO

COOPERATE WITH THE AAA 1942 FARM PROGRAM

Farmers are urged by Carl M. Bormet, chairman of the Cook Co. AAA Committee, to cooperate with the 1942 AAA farm program in adjusting production to needs and conserving soil as a patriotic measure for the welfare of American agriculture.

Because most payment rates will be reduced as a result of economy in Federal expenditures next year, the size of total payment each farm will earn probably will not be as high as in 1941, he said.

Joliet Chapel Phone Orland 108J p-19 42

Adjustment payments will be made only on crops of which there are large reserves. The corn payment has been reduced from 9 to 8 cents per bushel for each bushel normally produced under the corn allotment. Because wheat allotments have been reduced, the payment will be 10.5 cents per bushel for 1942 instead of 8 cents.

At least 20 per cent of the cropland on the farm will have to be devoted to conserving acres before the adjustment payments can be earned. If farm prices stay at close to parity levels, no parity payments will be made.

With increased emphasis on soil conservation next year, each farm will be able to earn more money for soil building practices. The soil building allowance will be 70 cents times the difference between the total amount of land in allotment crops and the total cropland.

By complying with provisions of the 1942 AAA program, Mr. Bormet said, farmers will maintain the economic and soil strength of agriculture. This strength is important if farmers are to be counted on to produce the needed food to win the war and write the peace.

America's War Victims Appeal for Your Help

First war poster of the new World War, painted by the distinguished artist James Montgomery Flagg, carries an appeal for a $50,000,000 war fund to aid the victims of aggression upon the United States and its island possessions.

To aid the victims of warfare being waged upon America and her island possessions, the American Red Cross has issued an appeal for $50,000,000 war fund, Chairman Norman H. Davis announced from the national headquarters in Washington.

Mr. Davis urged men, women and children to give to this mercy fund through their local Red Cross Chapters. These funds will support the Chapter's war work with the families of men in the military services, as well as the broad relief program of the national Red Cross.

President Roosevelt, who is president of the American Red Cross, issued a proclamation urging all citizens to give to the Red Cross war fund.

In launching the appeal, Chairman Davis said:

"There are millions of our citizens who desire today to demonstrate their will to victory over the enemy. Not all can be in the armed forces, and not all can volunteer their services for humanitarian work, but all can volunteer their dollars to arm the Red Cross to be their representative at the scene of battle and distress.

"Today is the day to demonstrate our high morale, our unity, our determination not alone to support our President and our fighting men at the front, but also to insure to our wounded, homeless and suffering fellow citizens in our Pacific Islands that we stand one hundred per cent ready to aid them through the Red Cross."

Serve One-Dish Meals as Smart Budget-Stretchers
(See Recipes Below)

Appetite Appeal Plus

Dents in the budget? Appetites wilted after the rich foods as a result of the double holidays? Well, you can smooth out those dents and at the same time perk up the jaded appetites by smart, simple, easy - to - manage one - dish meals.

Here's a parade of palate-thrilling recipes with which you can sprout right along even with the slimmest of budgets.

To stretch that food dollar, you can use leftover meats and vegetables that are called for in these casseroles. Yes, and what's especially nice about them is that they're tops in vitamins and minerals because they're fortified with those perfect foods, milk and butter. As you're pouring out the milk from the bottle, remember it's just brimming and bursting with health-giving qualities.

Here's a meal-in-a-dish which has a luscious butter and bread crumb topping to recommend it:

*One-Dish-Meal.

(Serves 6)

2 cups diced carrots (6 medium carrots)
1½ cups diced celery
6 medium potatoes, pared and sliced
3 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons flour
2 cups milk
1 cup meat stock or 1 bouillon cube in
1 cup hot water
1 teaspoon salt
3 to 6 tablespoons grated onion
1 cup peas (canned or fresh)
2 cups diced leftover meat
½ cup sifted bread crumbs
3 tablespoons melted butter
Cook carrots, celery and potatoes separately in boiling salted water until tender. Melt butter, blend in flour, add milk and meat stock. Cook over direct heat, stirring constantly until sauce boils and thickens. Add salt. Combine sauce with remaining ingredients, except crumbs and melted butter, and turn into a buttered casserole or baking dish. Combine crumbs and melted butter, sprinkle over surface. Bake in a moderate (350 degrees) oven 35 to 40 minutes.

Cabbage, one of winter's best vegetables, is featured in this casserole of tuna or salmon:

Scalloped Tuna and Cabbage.

(Serves 8)

2 cups boiling water
2 quarts chopped cabbage
2 cups rich milk
¼ pound American cheese
¼ cup flour
1 teaspoon salt
1 can tuna or salmon, flaked
2 cups buttered bread crumbs
Pour boiling water over cabbage, heat to boiling, add 1 cup milk and cheese, cut in pieces. Cook over hot water until cheese is melted. Blend flour, salt and remaining milk and add to cabbage. Add tuna or

LYNN SAYS:

Can you name the one food that does most for your body's health, most cheaply? Milk, of course! Why? Because milk does all of the following:

1. Promotes growth and maintains the body's resistance to infection through vitamin A.
2. Stimulates appetites and keeps the nerves in top-notch condition through vitamin B1; promotes growth and keeps the skin healthy through vitamins B2(G).
3. Helps calcium and vitamin C to develop teeth and bones properly if fortified with vitamin D.
4. As an excellent source of phosphorus, it also works to keep the teeth and bones in class A.
5. Milk's proteins come to the fore in repairing worn-down tissues and muscles and boosting growth.

salmon and put in buttered casserole. Top with crumbs and bake in moderate (350-degree) oven 20 minutes.

Beef Pie.

(Serves 6)

1 pound ground beef
1 onion, chopped
Salt and pepper
2½ cups green beans, cooked or canned
1 can tomato soup
4 large potatoes, cooked
½ cup warmed milk
1 beaten egg
Salt and pepper
Brown onion in hot fat, add meat and seasonings. Brown and add green beans and soup. Pour in greased casserole. Mash potatoes, add egg, milk and seasonings. Scoop over meat and bake in a moderate oven.

Baked potatoes and salmon are a favorite cold weather combination, but have you ever thought of blending the two together as one dish? No? Then you have a real treat coming if you try:

Salmon Stuffed Potatoes.

(Serves 6)

6 potatoes, baked
½ cup hot milk
1 beaten egg
Salt and pepper
1 tablespoon lemon juice
2 cups flaked salmon
¼ cup minced onion, sauteed
2 tablespoons butter
Buttered crumbs
Split baked potatoes and scoop out. Mash the potatoes, add milk, egg, salt. Fold in salmon, lemon juice and onions. Refill shells and sprinkle with buttered crumbs. Bake in a moderate oven 20 minutes.

Whisk away your problems with leftover chicken or turkey by serving the meat creamed with vegetables in the center of a rice ring, adding mushrooms, sauteed, if desired. Serve it also cut up in croquettes, in chicken tamale pie, curried with rice, scalloped with noodles, in chop suey, or as a pie like this one here:

Chicken Pie.

(Serves 6 to 8)

3 cups diced, cooked chicken
1 cup diced, cooked carrots
6 cooked, small white onions
1 tablespoon chopped parsley
1 cup milk
1 cup chicken stock
2 tablespoons flour
Salt and pepper
Arrange chicken and vegetables in layers in casserole. Combine milk and chicken stock, add flour, blending in slowly. Cook until thick, stirring constantly, then season. Pour over chicken and vegetables. Cover with a sweet potato crust and bake in a moderate oven 40 minutes.

Sweet Potato Crust.

This crust is the distinctive part of the chicken pie and a wonderful way to use up those few potatoes that are left over from the holiday dinner along with the chicken. It's a crust de luxe, a crisp, golden brown topping well worthy of chicken pie:

1 cup sifted flour
1 teaspoon baking powder
½ teaspoon salt
1 cup cold mashed sweet potato
½ cup fat, melted
1 beaten egg
Sift dry ingredients. Work in mashed potato, milk and egg. Roll ¼ inch thick, cover pie and flute edges.

STORY OF THE WEEK

Southern Girl

By MEREDITH SCHOLL

(Associated Newspapers—WNU Service.)

WHEN PALMER LINDSEY looked up at the girl he noticed her wide blue eyes and shoulder length soft golden hair. She started talking immediately and he enjoyed hearing her pleasant southern drawl.

"Well, well," he said. "So you're from the South?"

"Yes, suh. Magnolia City, just south of Atlanta, Georgia, suh."

"Do tell? And the name is?"

"Sally Lee Patterson, suh."

Palmer scratched his chin. He was thinking of the 150 other girls, New York born and bred, who aspired to the female reporter's position which was open on the Monitor.

He wondered how Sally Lee got by the office boy, but decided not to ask her. He'd rather guess. Where a hundred fifty others had failed Sally had been successful.

Humm.

"I suppose you've had experience, Miss Patterson?"

"Oh, yes suh. I worked fo' two years on the Magnolia City's Commentator. Yes, suh. I've had experience, suh."

Palmer scratched his chin again. He was trying to make up his mind to something, but before a decision asserted itself, the girl said:

"You-all are from the South, aren't you, suh?"

Palmer started. "How in the world did you know that?"

"Why, suh. We Southerners—" she broke off, staring at him in round-eyed significance. Palmer cleared his throat.

"I'll tell you what," he said. "You run down to the Municipal Building and get me a story on Felipe Menendez. He's up here from Mexico on business. Color it up and turn it in for the afternoon edition."

A month passed. And then one night up in Sally Lee's apartment, with the remains of a steak on the table between them, Palmer said suddenly, impulsively and without preamble: "Sally, I can't go on playing this game any longer. My conscience is killing me by inches. And the fact remains that you're not a newspaper woman or ever will be. I could get one of a thousand females to do your work, better than you're doing it, for half the salary. You're fired."

Sally looked at him with her wide blue eyes, bit one of her full red lips, looked down at the table and said: "O. K. I expected it."

Palmer dragged his chair around and sat down beside her. "Good. I knew you'd take it that way. And now that that's over, let's be honest with each other. Sally, I'm in love with you. I have been ever since the day you got by the office boy. You must have guessed."

"I had to guess, didn't I?" She looked up at him. "Because you never mentioned it. You only talked about the—the darned old newspaper."

"Excuses," he said. "Excuses to be with you. You knew that."

She watched him steadily. "And you knew I didn't come from Magnolia City, Georgia."

"I admired you for trying to get away with the gag, and for getting by the office boy. Because of that I thought you might make a good newspaper woman."

"Is that the only reason you hired me?"

"No. Will you marry me?"

Sally bit her full red lips again. "Mr. Goodnow thought I was a Southerner. How did you know I wasn't?"

"Shucks. Goodnow's a Southerner himself. You can't fool him. That's why I warned you."

"Goodnow is?—But aren't you?"

"Nope. I hail from New York. Flatbush. Lived there all my life. Five years ago I heard Goodnow was looking for a city editor. So I went in and told him I came from a little town outside of Richmond. Yes, suh. And he swallowed it. That's why I felt almost obliged to give you the same chance I had. Two people working the same gag, you know. But all the time I kept thinking of those other 150. Newspaper women. All of them. And hang it, Sally, you weren't making the grade. You weren't made to be a newspaper woman. You were made for—other things." He leaned toward her. "Sally, why not try being a newspaper man's wife?"

Sally considered. And Palmer, watching her, thought for a moment that he'd figured everything wrong. Then he saw the corners of her mouth begin to twitch, and he breathed again.

She looked up at him. "Well, suh, I promised myself I'd get to work on a newspaper. But since I'm not cut out for it, maybe second best will have to do. Yes, suh."

Whereupon Palmer took her into his arms and told her they'd spend their honeymoon in dear old Georgia, sho' enough.

"Sally, I can't go on playing this game any longer. My conscience is killing me by inches."

If you've got something on the ball—

"Oh, thank you, suh. I'll get the story, suh."

Palmer couldn't think of any good reason why he should take Sally Lee to lunch, except that he wanted to talk to her about the story she'd written on Menendez, and because also he wanted to ask her more about Magnolia City. Both of which he thought sufficient excuses.

"When I told you to color it up," he explained over coffee, "I didn't mean to write an essay. After all, there are certain rules that every newspaper writer must abide by."

He went on patiently to explain what those rules were, although he didn't know why. Any one of the other 150 candidates wouldn't have to be told. But after awhile, when the conversation shifted to Georgia, and she told him about Magnolia City in the soft drawly way she had felt repaid.

"There's one thing you'll want to remember," he said as they crossed the street back to the Monitor office. "Goodnow—he's the managing editor—comes from Virginia."

She flashed him a look of grateful understanding.

"Thank you, suh," she said.

"And don't," said Palmer, "call me 'suh.' Call me 'Palmer.'"

It was more than a week before Palmer permitted anything of Sally Lee's to appear in the Monitor. Then he did so in fear and trembling. But nobody said anything, no reader wrote sarcastic letters to the editor asking whether the squib was a humorous column or a treatise on the wild life in Central Park, and Palmer felt that he'd passed the crisis.

During that first week he spent three evenings with Sally Lee trying to explain to her that news was supposed to be presented in boiled-down facts and not in a lot of gushy, flowery phrases. Her style of writing made him skeptical about the type of paper the Magnolia City Commentator might be.

And all the time Palmer was conscious of a feeling of guilt. He felt that way especially when he read Sally Lee's stuff and thought of the 150 other prospects, New York born and bred. He expected momentarily that Goodnow would come stamping over and make some sarcastic crack about General Lee's daughter and her mush, but Goodnow didn't. In fact, Palmer saw the managing editor stop twice at Sally Lee's desk and say something to her which caused the Magnolia City scribe to look at him with her wide blue eyes and smile.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Save your scraps of soap, melt them together and use for washing clothes.

When grinding dry bread, tie a paper bag over the outlet of the grinder to prevent crumbs from going over the table and floor.

It's better to wash soiled woolen garments through several sudsy waters instead of just one. It is easier on the garment.

Cook carrots in just a little water so you won't have to drain off any of the minerals and vitamins before serving.

Wash your dish towels daily and dry them in the sun to keep them white and free from odor.

One teaspoon of onion juice or half a sliced raw onion added to mashed potatoes gives them a different flavor.

Best for Juice

Science proves California orange juice has more vitamins C and A, and calcium, more health in every glass.

And you know it is extra rich from its deeper color and more delicious flavor!

California Navel oranges are seedless. Easy to peel, slice and section. Perfect for recipes, lunch boxes, and between-meals eating!

Hopes for Man

We wish man to be better than he is. We wish him to have more love, more feeling for the beautiful, the great, and the true; that the ideal which he pursues shall be purer, more divine; that he shall feel his own dignity, shall have more respect for his immortal soul. We wish him to have in a faith freely adopted, a Pharos to guide him, and we would have his acts correspond to that faith. —Mazzini.

We Can All Be EXPERT BUYERS

● In bringing us buying information, as to prices that are being asked for what we intend to buy, and as to the quality we can expect, the advertising columns of this newspaper perform a worth while service which saves us many dollars a year.
● It is a good habit to form, the habit of consulting the advertisements every time we make a purchase, though we have already decided just what we want and where we are going to buy it. It gives us the most priceless feeling in the world: the feeling of being adequately prepared.
● When we go into a store, prepared beforehand with knowledge of what is offered and at what price, we go as an expert buyer, filled with self-confidence. It is a pleasant feeling to have, the feeling of adequacy. Most of the unhappiness in the world can be traced to a lack of this feeling. Thus advertising shows another of its manifold facets—shows itself as an aid toward making all our business relationships more secure and pleasant.

Three year old purebred Jersey Bull of high production blood lines. Though not eligible to registration, these cows are the product of 18 yrs. using purebred registered Jersey Bulls of high production breeding, on good grade Jersey cows. All of these cows were raised by me. Most of them are the daughters, grand and great grand daughters of six or seven cows who made dairy herd improvement association records of over 500 lbs. Butterfat in a year. The average of the Pure Milk Association monthly tests of the herd milk for the past six years is approximately 4.9 per cent butterfat. To raise your herd test or to provide the richest milk for your family, come and buy one or more of these high testing, high producing Jerseys. Inspection is invited—come any time.
